'Mommy, I don't want to go to school!' can be one of the most overwhelming and emotionally challenging pleas for any parent to cope with. For parents, their child's first day at school represents his first steps towards independence and formal education. But for children, it could mean a new surrounding, new faces, absence of mother... a potent mixture bound to induce anxieties in him. So as parents, what are the important things we can do to ensure the transition into school goes well and children feel confident and relaxed about the first few days? Here are some tips to help you...
